

Bringing the best science to contraceptive care

The UCSF Bixby Center's Beyond the Pill Program partners with health care providers, educational institutions and other non-profit organizations throughout the United States to expand reproductive autonomy and contraceptive access and reduce the impacts of implicit bias in contraceptive care.

We are science-driven and continuously innovate to improve contraceptive care.

Virtual and on-site training for health staff. Our CME-accredited, evidence-based training provides clinicians and other clinic staff with the tools they need to offer a full range of contraceptive methods to their patients. We offer our training virtually or on-site and at no cost for qualifying organizations. We also offer a free, self-paced, CME-accredited online course.

Educational tools for patients & students. We provide educational materials on a range of contraceptive methods, including IUDs and implants. These colorful, engaging materials are specially designed for adolescents and young adults and include videos, posters, and counseling aids. Materials are available at low or no cost to health and educational organizations.
